METHODIST PASTOR OFF TO ANNUAL CONFERENCE

Closing his year's work with his Sunday night's sermon, Rev. J. B. Thrasher left Monday evening for Dublin to attend the annual conference at which he will be assigned to new labors for the coming year. As an expression of respect for the departing pastor, the pastors of the Presbyterian and Baptist churches called off their evening services and united with the Methodists Sunday evening.

The Sunday evening service also marked the close of revival services which the pastor had been conducting for two weeks. During this revival some twenty-five members were received into the church, and several of these having been received at the Sunday morning service through profession of faith, while a number had previously been received by letter.

Rev. Mr. Thrasher has completed his fourth year as pastor of the Statesboro church, and will be assigned to another field for next year. A new pastor will also be assigned to the Statesboro church, which is interesting the members at the present time. Appointments will be announced at the conference in Dublin next Monday, according to the usual custom.

Rev. Thrasher will return to Statesboro at the close of conference and begin preparations for moving. He will preach on Sunday, the 30th inst., for the last time here.

ALLEN-AKINS.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Allen on Wednesday evening was the scene of one of the prettiest social events of the season, when their daughter, Mary Ruth, became the bride of Mr. E. M. Akins.

The reception hall, parlor and dining room were thrown together and were decorated with light geraniums and pink carnations. The color scheme of the occasion being pink and green, was carried out in every detail.

To the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Miss Ouida Brannen on the piano, accompanied by Mrs. Bruce Akins on the violin, the bride party descended the stairs.

First came the flower girl, little Miss Pernie Ann Mallard, who wore a dainty white crepe meter dress and carried a basket of pink carnations, and the little ring bearer, Master Edwin Carpenter, who wore a suit of white satin and carried the ring in a lily of the valley. Then came the maid of honor, Miss Ruby Akins, attired in tulle meter dress and carrying pink carnations, and best man, Mr. Floyd Akins.

The bride met the groom under an arch formed of greenery and carnations, where the Rev. J. B. Thrasher performed the ceremony. Through the ceremony Miss Brannen and Mrs. Akins softly played "The Flower Song."

The bride was dressed in a traveling suit of blue tulle with accessories to match, and carried a bouquet of orange blossoms and valley lilies. Mr. and Mrs. Akins left immediately after the ceremony for a bridal trip to Atlanta and other points.

LABOR TRUST SPANKED.

In old days great capitalists interested assumed to run, manage and manipulate political affairs in town, city, county and state, and there was a popular impression that Washington was their lead pipe cinch. This condition gave birth to "insurgents" in the Republican party, and "progressives" in both the Republican and Democratic parties, and there also appeared a lot of Socialists, and other radicals, all of whom have been running wild throughout the land, doing considerable good (and harm) through their various activities. The net result of all these changes in the public temper has been that popular government has never prospered more in the United States than during the past ten or fifteen years. The voters of the country literally took the capitalist interests across their backs and paddled them good; and the intelligent observer must agree that the operation was a fine thing for the country.

The wage-earners of the country looked on at this performance and applauded heartily. When the chasement commenced a few clever labor leaders started in to build up a great organization, and under the masterful leadership of Samuel Gompers they finally placed themselves in the saddle during the period of war excitement. American labor stood squarely back of the government and was loyal to the core. It registered 100 per cent in helping win the war.

Meanwhile while fighting for Democracy in Europe the conviction settled itself upon our nation that there should be a more equal distribution of it among the laboring men in the United States. A few labor leaders mistaking the desire of the nation to work out intelligent reforms in the industrial situation, thought that their individual leadership was getting all the applause, and in the cockedness that they were "it" they came forward and defiantly threatened everybody and everything that stood in their pathway. The Railroad Brotherhoods went before congress and boldly threatened to "put up the railroads so they would never run again" unless their legislative schemes (which congress believes to be wholly visionary and unsound) were passed. The police in many cities, including those in the national capital, became troublesome owing to their affiliation with the American Federation of Labor; and a brave governor in the old Bay State handled the Boston situation in a way that was later overwhelmingly approved by the voters of Massachusetts.

In the hope of finding a better method than strikes and lockouts, the President of the United States assembled the representatives of capital and labor in an Industrial Conference in Washington, and at a critical time in the proceedings President Wilson sent a message from his sick room appealing to the delegates to stick to the task and bring about a plan upon which employers and employees could operate the industries of the country without strikes, lockouts and other disturbances. Samuel Gompers and his group of labor leaders threw defiance to the President to the conference and to the nation, and bolted; with the result that the proceedings came to a close. The steel strike was at its height and the only prospect for betterment of the condition of the wage-earners in that industry laid in the conference itself.

Next came the coal strike, and the government again patiently counseled against it, and offered every facility to secure justice for the disputants. The leaders of the strike defied the government, and Mr. Gompers proved to be the worst hornet of all. This was the same Samuel Gompers who has been pointed out as the "same leader" and the "great patriot."

What happened is too well known to need retelling, and whether or not the Attorney General was justified in revoking "government by injunction" need not be discussed here. The final result is the more important, and the only conclusion is that the labor leaders ers blundered on, to their own undoing.

The labor leaders got the same treatment that was administered to autocratic capitalists years ago. It was Spanking Number Two. And they got it for the same reason that it was inflicted earlier in our history upon the capitalist.

Autocracy of class is not "at home" in America. Now, perhaps since capital and labor have been brought to realize that they are not as big as the government of the United States, a little common sense may be injected into the struggle between these classes. Defiance of the United States government all ways has and always will fail. A number of Southern States tried in the early sixties and found out their mistake. Eugene V. Debs tried it when he led the Pullman car strike in 1894, and even though he was backed by Governor Altgeld, of the great state of Illinois, Grover Cleveland, as president of the United States, gave a practical demonstration of federal power that should have been an object lesson to the strike leaders and champions in 1919, not to heap too many indignities upon Uncle Sam.

There are great object lessons to be deducted from recent events, since they have but served to demonstrate that capital and labor have failed in settling the differences that exist between them.

Both of them played the "naughty boy" act until their patient old Uncle Sam lost his temper and gave them their deserved spankings. It now remains to be seen whether the government itself, having demonstrated its power, and convinced skeptical people, that it, as the supreme government of all the country, is bigger than any one class, or two classes, or group of classes, will find an intelligent way to put an end to the foolish strikes and lockouts that distress the country, and substitute therefor a sort of League of Industry to settle the problems of employers and employees; for strikes and lockouts, those which have thrown between one and two million workmen out of employment during recent weeks, are nothing more than military tactics that the world is tiring to supplant with peaceful and constitutional methods.

CONGRESSMAN OVERSTREET VISITOR TO STATESBORO

Hon. J. W. Overstreet, congressman from the First district, was circulating among his friends in Statesboro Tuesday. Mr. Overstreet came home for a few days' visit with his family in Sylvania during the recess of congress, and seized this opportunity to call upon his friends in Bulloch.

While he has made no formal announcement of his candidacy, Mr. Overstreet let it be understood that he is to be a candidate for re-election, and at the proper time will make a formal statement of his intentions in the matter.

Cut This Out—It Is Worth Money. DON'T MISS THIS. Cut out this Gompers and his group of labor leaders threw defiance to the President to the conference and to the nation, and bolted; with the result that the proceedings came to a close. The steel strike was at its height and the only prospect for betterment of the condition of the wage-earners in that industry laid in the conference itself.

SENATOR HOKE SMITH TELLS WHY HE DID IT

GIVES OUT A CAREFULLY PREPARED STATEMENT OUTLINING HIS POSITION.

Atlanta, Nov. 24.—A compromise is seen in the peace treaty by Senator Hoke Smith, who today gave out a carefully prepared statement in which he outlined his position, following his vote in Washington for certain reservations and his stand with the Republicans in urging ratification.

He says that he believes the treaty and league of nations covenant will be ratified, with reservations, soon after the senate convenes again in Washington in December, and believes that this could have been done at the session just closed if efforts at compromise had received the consideration they deserved.

By an analysis of the various votes cast on reservations he makes it plain that there should be no real difficulty in coming to an understanding when the senate meets again.

Before the illness of the President the senate would have considered and agreed upon reservations several weeks ago, in the opinion of Georgia's senior senator.

Speaking of the treaty, he said, "The treaty of peace with Germany ought to have been ratified before the senate adjourned. I hope and believe it still can be ratified soon after the senate meets."

"There are fifteen Republican senators and one Democrat who wishes to kill the treaty. There are eighty-one senators who are willing and most of them really desirous to have the treaty ratified. Much of the delay has been due to the efforts of the fifteen senators to kill the treaty and ill-vised insistence by others that the treaty should be ratified without reservations."

"Within thirty days after the treaty reached the senate it was perfectly clear that a majority of the senate was opposed to ratification without reservations. I regret all the friends of the treaty did not then take up the question of reservations for the purpose of agreeing on them. They concede now their mistake."

WOODRUM MAY OFFER FOR NEW SOLICITORSHIP
Hon. Willie Woodrum, of Millen, who was a visitor to the city during the present week, announced that he will probably be a candidate for the office of solicitor of the Ogeechee circuit. He is a native of Bulloch county, where he taught school for years during his early manhood. After his admission to the bar, he moved to Millen and has been successful in the practice of law. For eight years he has been solicitor of the city court of Millen, which experience he and his friends contend will especially fit him for the office of solicitor-general should he really decide to enter the race.

PINEVIEW FARMS

G. C. COLEMAN, Proprietor.

Program for the week at the Amusu Theater.

MONDAY, DEC. 1.—Catherine Calvert in "The Career of Katherine Bush." Some day I shall be one of the greatest women in England, she said. And through her power to attract men, this penniless beauty reached her heights. Was her triumph worth the price she paid? See the pulsing romance from the celebrated novel by Elinor Glynn, then judge for yourself.

TUESDAY, DEC. 2.—Pith News. Marie Walcamp's fourth Spur and Saddle Story. New serial, "Smashing Larriers," in which our favorite return, William Duncan (as Dick Durling), Edith Johnson (as Bella Manners), and Joe Ryan (as Bullhead Bulger). Besides starring in this production, William Duncan loved mischief maker and winner on the athletic field of the University of California, from there to the lumber camps in the West where trouble begins.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 3.—Vivian Martin in "Louisiana." Louisiana is different. The "city folk" turn out in this story, while the country boy is the villain. The country boy being immensely jealous follows her to the city and shoots to kill the young man she had met and loved.

THURSDAY, DEC. 4.—William S. Hart in "Wagon Tracks." No thrills here! A plain and honest tale of Buckskin Hamilton, man, and of the brother he loved. Of another man, too, upon whose head was that brother's blood. And of a woman. Far into the vast open spaces the wagon tracks lead until—the great adventure! Startling! Tremendous! And the long trail turns. You'll never forget Hart in this big, human, soul-searching picture.

FRIDAY, DEC. 5.—Pathe News. James J. Corbett in "The II Episode of The Midnight Man." Comedy.

SATURDAY, DEC. 6.—Gladys Leslie in "The Girl Woman." On her eighteenth birthday Belinda (Gladys) celebrates putting up her hair and decides that she has become a woman. Belinda came in time to save her father in a cave, then sets to work to prove his innocence, and finally succeeds in doing so. Comedy. "Yaps and Yodels," by James Aubrey.

CAPTURED LIVE RATTLESNAKE.

Abraham Moore, a colored farmer living near Butler, displayed a live rattlesnake in Statesboro during the past week which he had captured in an exciting manner. The snake was discovered going into a gopher hole, and Abraham and his brothers set to work digging him out. Eight feet under ground he was found in a fighting mood. Abraham tied a sack to a long pole and passed it down for the snake to chew on. When he made a lick, his fangs hung in the sack, and his snakeship was dragged out. It was easy to handle him after that with the sack in his teeth.

RIGGS RESIGNS AS DEPUTY AFTER LONG SERVICE

Deputy Sheriff Rat Riggs has resigned his position under Sheriff DeLoach, effective December 1st. His resignation is due to his desire to give his entire attention to his own affairs. He has served as deputy for the past eight years, beginning with Sheriff J. H. Donaldson and serving through the administration of Sheriff B. T. Mallard. He has proved himself an invaluable officer, courteous and affable in the discharge of his duties. He has a wide circle of friends over the county who will regret to have him sever his connection with a position which he had become so well fitted.

The work of the office having decreased to such extent that Mr. Riggs found it unprofitable to continue his connection with the office, Sheriff DeLoach and Deputy Mitchell will see that the affairs themselves for the time being.

A GOOD COLORED MAN DEAD.

On Friday last, W. P. Livingston, known to his acquaintances as Pinkney Livingston, quietly passed away at his home on Cotton avenue. The end came to him as he had lived, quiet and peaceful. During his last hours he exhorted his friends and relatives around his bedside to live the honorable and upright life.

So far as I am advised, he had no enemies. Everyone who knew him was his friend. He showed himself a friend to all classes and races, therefore he was universally respected. The writer had business relations with him in various ways for many years, and always found him upright and honest in all his dealings. He was a good citizen.

Pinkney had accumulated considerable property by economy and thrift. He was active and useful as a member of the First Baptist church, colored, of this city.

He will be greatly missed by his church and people. This sketch is written in the hope that it may prove a help to many of the friends and relatives of the departed by encouraging them to emulate his example and thereby become more prosperous and useful citizens.

FOR MEN WHO WORK HARD.

Men who work at hard physical labor are subject to kidney trouble. J. G. Wolfe, 734 S. They also relieve bladder and urinary ailments.—Bulloch Drug Co.

CARD OF THANKS.

We most earnestly thank our neighbors and friends for the many deeds of kindness rendered us during the sickness and death of our little boy, Clarence Mays. Alton and Rosa Lee.

Rub-M-Tim is a great pain killer. It relieves pain and soreness caused by rheumatism, neuralgia, sprains, etc.

Sulky Plow Economy

When you buy one of our John Deere Stag Sulky Plows, you buy no unnecessary parts. The Stag is all plow. Every one of its few parts aid directly in making it easier for you and the horses to do better plowing.

Because of its simplicity and great strength the Stag stays serviceable longer than any other plow of its type and requires fewer repairs.

Freedom from unnecessary parts, perfect balance and the absence of drag on the furrow bottom make the Stag the lightest running sulky plow. It does more work in the same time with less horse power.

The Stag has extreme clearance—four inches more ordinary between beam and share point and six inches more than ordinary between front wheel rim and moldboard.

It is easy to operate the Stag—a boy can do it. By means of the landing lever, the operator can easily guide the plow around stones or other obstructions, or hold the plow on side hills, maintaining a full width cut.

The Stag's advantages have all been fully demonstrated. It is a favorite in all great farming sections because of its real economy. We want you to investigate these advantages.

Ask us to show you a John Deere Stag Sulky.

STATESBORO OBSERVED
THANKSGIVING DAYBUSINESS HOUSES CLOSED AND
TOWN WAS PRACTICALLY DE-SERVED FOR THE DAY.

Statesboro observed Thanksgiving today in the usual manner, by closing the stores and the masses of the people leaving for parts unknown, either to the woods behind dogs or to spend the day with relatives and friends out of town.

In the forenoon services were held at the Baptist church, where a splendid song service preceded an able Thanksgiving talk by the pastor.

In the afternoon at the fair ground the W. O. W. held forth with a program of feasting and sports. Ten barrels of oysters in the shell were served and contests were staged for various athletic events—climbing the greased pole, catching the greased pig, bicycle racing, etc. Two or three hundred persons attended these events.

"Mr. Watkins gave us the 'Fortune Hunter' Monday evening, and for one and one-half hours he had his audience spellbound. It was enjoyed more than had it been put on by the different characters. The characters were said of him." Court house auditorium Tuesday evening, Dec. 2.—adv.
